

The Languages of Nation

MULTILINGUAL MATTERS

Series Editor: John Edwards, St. Francis Xavier University, Canada

Multilingual Matters series publishes books on bilingualism, bilingual education, immersion education, second language learning, language policy, multiculturalism. The editor is particularly interested in 'macro' level studies of language policies, language maintenance, language shift, language revival and language planning. Books in the series discuss the relationship between language in a broad sense and larger cultural issues, particularly identity related ones.

Full details of all the books in this series and of all our other publications can be found on <http://www.multilingual-matters.com>, or by writing to Multilingual Matters, St Nicholas House, 31–34 High Street, Bristol BS1 2AW, UK.

The Languages of Nation

Attitudes and Norms

Edited by

Carol Percy and

Mary Catherine Davidson

MULTILINGUAL MATTERS

Bristol • Buffalo • Toronto

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication Data

The Languages of Nation: Attitudes and Norms/Edited by Carol Percy and Mary Catherine Davidson.

Multilingual Matters: 148

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Linguistic minorities—Education—Social aspects—Cross-cultural studies.

2. Multicultural education—Cross-cultural studies. 3. Education, Bilingual—Cross-cultural studies. I. Percy, Carol. II. Davidson, Mary Catherine.

P119.315.L364 2012

306.44089—dc23 2012022106

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data

A catalogue entry for this book is available from the British Library.

ISBN-13: 978-1-84769-780-6 (hbk)

Multilingual Matters

UK: St Nicholas House, 31–34 High Street, Bristol BS1 2AW, UK.

USA: UTP, 2250 Military Road, Tonawanda, NY 14150, USA.

Canada: UTP, 5201 Dufferin Street, North York, Ontario M3H 5T8, Canada.

Copyright © 2012 Carol Percy, Mary Catherine Davidson and the authors of individual chapters.

All rights reserved. No part of this work may be reproduced in any form or by any means without permission in writing from the publisher.

The policy of Multilingual Matters/Channel View Publications is to use papers that are natural, renewable and recyclable products, made from wood grown in sustainable forests. In the manufacturing process of our books, and to further support our policy, preference is given to printers that have FSC and PEFC Chain of Custody certification. The FSC and/or PEFC logos will appear on those books where full certification has been granted to the printer concerned.

Typeset by Techset Composition Ltd, Salisbury, UK

Printed and bound in Great Britain by the MPG Books Group

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Contributors	xiii
1 Introduction: Multidisciplinary and Multilingual Perspectives on ‘Patriotic’ Prescriptivism Carol Percy and Mary Catherine Davidson	1
2 Foreword: Language, Prescriptivism, Nationalism – and Identity John Edwards	11
Introduction	11
Prescriptivism in Theory and Practice	14
Modified Prescriptivism	18
Conclusion	24
Part 1: Managing Language Policies
3 William Cecil and the Rectification of English Ian Lancashire	39
Introduction	39
Hard Words	40
The Cambridge Doctrine and Cecil’s Market-based Language Economy	41
Manuscript Evidence of Cecil’s Cambridge Doctrine	45
Cecil’s Men	47
Cecil’s Patronage of Books	51
4 Prescribing Pastoral and Pragmatic Orientations: Challenges for Language Policy Lionel Wee	63
Introduction	63

South Korea, Malaysia and Singapore	65
South Korea: Debating English as an Official Language	67
Malaysia: The Bumiputra Policy	70
Singapore: Multiracialism and Pragmatism	73
Concluding Discussion	75

Part 2: Colonialism and Literary Canons

5	Mutual Preservation of Standard Language and National Identity in Early Modern Wales	83
	John D. Phillips
	Introduction	83
	Medieval Welsh	84
	The Act of Union, 1536	88
	Religion in England	89
	Act for a Welsh Translation of the Bible and Book of Common Prayer, 1563	90
	The 1588 Bible	91
	The Effect of the 1563 Act	92
	Conclusion	95
6	'A Highly Poetical Language': Scots, Burns, Patriotism and Evaluative Language in 19th-century Literary Reviews and Articles	99
	Marina Dossena
	Introduction	99
	Views of Scots in Late Modern Times	101
	Burns and His Critics	103
	Burns and the Scots Language in North American Literary Reviews and Articles of the 19th Century	105
	Concluding Remarks	114
	Appendix	118

Part 3: Transmarine and Transatlantic Allegiances

7	Language and National Identity in 17th- and 18th-century England	123
	Linda C. Mitchell
	Introduction	123
	Aims of Grammarians and Lexicographers Directed at Foreigners	124
	Conclusion	136

8	'À la Mode de Paris': Linguistic Patriotism and Francophobia in 18th-century Britain	141
	Joan C. Beal
	The Language of the Enemy	141
	Language à la Mode : French, Fashion and Effeminacy	143
	Words of War: Attitudes to French Military Terms	147
	Loanwords from French: Perception versus Reality	151
	Conclusion	153
9	Pronouncing Dictionaries between Patriotism and Prescriptivism: Perspectives on Provincialism in Webster's America	155
	Massimo Sturiale
	Introduction	155
	From Purism to Prescriptivism: The British Background	156
	Standard Ideology and 18th-century Pronouncing Dictionaries	157
	Standards of English in an Independent America	159
	Provincialism and American Prescriptivism: Perry in America	163
	The American Democratic Approach	166
 Part 4: Re-defining Boundaries: Ideology and Language Norms
10	Patriotism, Empire and Cultural Prescriptivism: Images of Anglicity in the OED	175
	Lynda Mugglestone
	Dictionaries and Dictionary-making: Patriotism and Philology	175
	The OED : Patriotism and National Pride	177
	Describing the World of Words	178
	Cultural Prescriptivism and the 'Core of Anglicity'	180
	'Us' and 'Them' in OED1	183
	The Empire and the World of English Words	186
11	You Say Nucular; I Say Yourstupid: Popular Prescriptivism in the Politics of the United States	192
	Don Chapman

Part 5: Identifying Norms and Attitudes in Postcolonial Contexts

- | | | |
|----|---|-----|
| 12 | English and Pidgin in Cameroon: Peaceful or Conflicting Coexistence? | 211 |
| | Jean-Paul Kouega | |
| | The Development of Pidgin and English in Cameroon | 212 |
| | Method of Data Collection | 214 |
| | Survey Results | 215 |
| | Discussion | 219 |
| | Conclusion | 220 |
| | Appendix | 221 |
| 13 | Susu not Sousou : Nationalism, Prescriptivism and Etymology in a Postcolonial Creole Language Orthography | 223 |
| | Lise Winer | |
| | Introduction | 223 |
| | Language Ideology and Ascription of Etymology | 225 |
| | Language Sources in TEC | 228 |
| | Case Studies | 230 |
| | Conclusion | 240 |

Part 6: Prescribing Norms Beyond Borders: Foreign Language Teaching

- | | | |
|----|---|-----|
| 14 | Rules for the Neighbours: Prescriptions of the German Language for British Learners | 245 |
| | Nicola McLelland | |
| | Introduction: What Can Materials for Non-native Speakers Tell Us? | 245 |
| | Grammatical Description and Prescription of German in 20th-century Textbooks | 253 |
| | Conclusion | 264 |
| 15 | Nativeness, Authority, Authenticity: The Construction of Belonging and Exclusion in Debates about English Language Proficiency and Immigration in Britain | 271 |
| | Martin Gill | |
| | Authenticity | 271 |
| | Authenticity and Exclusion | 272 |
| | A Brief History of Authenticity | 273 |

Authenticity and the Nature of Language in Linguistics and Sociolinguistics	275
The Native Speaker of English	278
Displacing the Native Speaker	282
'Have Your Say'	284
Conclusion	288
Index	292

Acknowledgements

The chapters in this book were selected from English-language papers presented at the conference on ‘Prescriptivism & Patriotism: Language norms and identities from nationalism to globalization/Normes linguistiques et identitaires du nationalisme à la mondialisation’, held in August 2009 at New College, University of Toronto, Canada. For its generous support of the conference and thus of this publication, we are especially grateful to the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada/Conseil de recherches en sciences humaines du Canada (grant 646–2008–1115), and to the Jackman Humanities Institute, University of Toronto. We also gratefully acknowledge the support of the Offices of the Principal at New College and at Glendon, York University/Université York, and of many other units at the University of Toronto. A full list of sponsors and more information about the conference can be found on its website (<http://projects.chass.utoronto.ca/prescrip/>).

The peer review process is central to academic publication, but anonymous external reviewers sometimes don’t get acknowledged. We are happy to take this public opportunity to thank all of them – the few who declined to be identified, and Eric A. Anchimbe, Phil Benson, Sean Bowerman, Michèle Cohen, Václav Cvrček, Alan Davies, Dagmar Deuber, Paulin Djite, Ed Finegan, Anthea Fraser Gupta, John Joseph, Robert B. (Bob) Kaplan, David Klausner, Nils Langer, Jack Lynch, Lynne Magnusson, Rod McConchie, Robert McColl Millar, Jiri Nekvapil, John R. Perry, María Esther Rodríguez-Gil, Mario Saraceni, Barbara Schmenk, Mark Sebba, Janet Sorensen, Colin Williams, Eddie Williams and Nuria Yáñez-Bouza.

Finally, this publication could not have been prepared without the support of Anna Roderick, Laura Longworth, Sarah Williams, Elinor Robertson and Tommi Grover at Multilingual Matters, John Edwards in his role as General Editor, our copy-editor and indexer Soon-Ai (Vicki) Low, Hannah Turner and the Techset team, postgraduate Arden Hegele in her capacity as administrative and editorial assistant, and calm computer gurus Philippa Matheson, Yves Bourque and Marguerite Perry. Thank you!

Contributors

Joan C. Beal is Professor of English Language at the University of Sheffield (UK). Her previous publications include English in Modern Times 1700–1945 (2006), English Pronunciation in the Eighteenth Century (1999) and (co-edited with Massimo Sturiale and Carmela Nocera) Perspectives on Prescriptivism (2008).

Don Chapman is Associate Professor of Linguistics and English Language at Brigham Young University (USA). His main research interest in prescriptivism is in developing methods for evaluating the usefulness of particular prescriptive rules in English. Previous publications on prescriptivism include articles on ‘The eighteenth-century grammarians as language experts’ and on ‘Bad ideas in the history of English usage’, the ways that new prescriptive rules are proposed.

Mary Catherine Davidson is Associate Professor of English at Glendon, York University (Canada). Her recent monograph, Medievalism, Multilingualism, and Chaucer (2010), explores monolingual biases in the field of the history of the English language. Stemming from approaches in this book and from recent presentations, her current book project examines the changing status of American English in the cinematic representation and popular reception of English dialects and second languages in Hollywood film in the 1940s and 1950s. Her articles on code-switching and style-shifting have appeared in Studies in Medievalism (2006), Modern Philology (2005), Early Modern Literary Studies (1997) and in Opening Windows on Texts and Discourses of the Past (2005).

Marina Dossena is Professor of English Language and Head of the Department of Comparative Languages, Literatures and Cultures at the University of Bergamo (Italy). Her research interests focus on historical pragmatics, historical dialectology, especially in relation to the history of Scots and English in Scotland, and the history of specialized discourse. A member of the International Committee of the Association for Scottish Literary Studies, she is currently compiling a corpus of 19th-century Scottish correspondence.

John Edwards is Professor of Psychology at St Francis Xavier University and Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada. He has lectured and published widely on language, identity and the many ramifications of their relationship. The editor of the Journal of Multilingual and Multicultural Development and of the Multilingual Matters book series, his own books include The Irish Language (1983), Language, Society and Identity (1985), Multilingualism (1995) and Language in Canada (1998). More recent volumes include Un mundo de lenguas (2009), Language and Identity (2009), Language Diversity in the Classroom (2010), Minority Languages and Group Identity (2010) and Challenges in the Social Life of Language (2011). Forthcoming books include Sociolinguistics (Oxford University Press) and Multilingualism: Understanding Linguistic Diversity (Continuum).

Martin Gill is Associate Professor in the department of English Language and Literature at Åbo Akademi University, Finland, where he teaches sociolinguistics, applied linguistics and cultural studies. His current research is concerned with questions of language and authenticity/authentication, and multilingual communities. Recent publications include 'Authenticity' in Pragmatics in Practice (J. Verschueren and J-O. Östman (eds) John Benjamins, 2011), and 'Authentication and Nigerian letters', in the Handbook of the Pragmatics of Computer-Mediated Communication (S. Herring, D. Stein and T. Virtanen (eds) De Gruyter Mouton, to appear 2012).

Jean-Paul Kouega is Professor of English Linguistics at the University of Yaounde I (Cameroon). His research interest is in the fields of New Englishes and sociolinguistics. His most recent publications include A Dictionary of Cameroon English Usage (2007), 'The language situation in Cameroon' (2007), A Dictionary of Cameroon Pidgin Usage: Pronunciation, Grammar and Vocabulary (2008) and 'Language, religion and cosmopolitanism: Language use in the Catholic Church in Yaounde – Cameroon' (2008) published in the International Journal of Multilingualism, where a structural-functional model for the analysis of language use in religion is proposed.

Ian Lancashire, Professor of English, University of Toronto, and Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, has published Two Tudor Interludes (1980), Dramatic Texts and Records of Britain (1984), The Humanities Computing Yearbook (1991), Using TACT with Electronic Texts (1996), Teaching Literature and Language Online (2009) and Forgetful Muses: Reading the Author in the Text (2010). He edits two databases, Representative Poetry Online (1994–) and Lexicons of Early Modern English (2006–), and does research on Early Modern English vocabulary. Forthcoming is the five-volume Ashgate Critical Essays on Early English Lexicographers of which he is General Editor.

Nicola McLelland is Associate Professor in German at the University of Nottingham (UK), where she specializes in linguistics and in the history of linguistic ideas. She has published on topics from 13th-century German literature to 21st-century spelling reform, but has a particular interest in the history of German grammars. Her book on the 17th-century German language theoretician Schottelius appeared in 2011: J.G. Schottelius's Ausführliche Arbeit von der Teutschen Haubtsprache (1663) and its Place in Early Modern European Vernacular Language Study. She is editor of the journal Language & History.

Linda C. Mitchell is Professor of English at San Jose State University (USA). She is the author of Grammar Wars: Language as Cultural Battleground in 17th- and 18th-century England (2001) and is currently writing A Cultural History of English Lexicography, 1600–1800: The Authoritative Word (Ashgate) and an annotated edition of Milton's Grammar for The Complete Works of John Milton (Oxford University Press). She is also co-editor of collections about letter-writing (2007 and forthcoming), and has published articles in the Huntington Library Quarterly, International Journal of Lexicography, Handbook of World Englishes and Studies in Early Modern Philosophy.

Lynda Mugglestone is Professor of History of English at the University of Oxford, and a Fellow and Tutor in English at Pembroke College, Oxford (UK). She has published widely on language (including the history and social and cultural roles of dictionaries), with a particular focus on the 18th and 19th centuries. Recent work includes: Lexicography and the OED: Pioneers in the Untrodden Forest (Oxford University Press, 2000, 2002), 'Talking Proper': The Rise of Accent as Social Symbol (Oxford University Press, 2nd edn, 2003; revised paperback edn, 2007), Lost for Words: The Hidden History of the Oxford English Dictionary (Yale University Press, 2005) and Dictionaries: A Very Short Introduction (Oxford University Press, 2011). She is editor of the Oxford History of English (Oxford University Press, 2006, 2007, 2012) and, with Freya Johnston, of Samuel Johnson: the Arc of the Pendulum. (Oxford University Press, forthcoming 2012). She is currently at work on a further book on Johnson and his dictionary.

Carol Percy is Associate Professor of English at the University of Toronto (Canada). Her recent articles on 18th-century English prescriptivism have appeared in Eighteenth-century English: Ideology and Change (2010), Social Roles and Language Practices in Late Modern English (2010), Educating the Child in Enlightenment Britain (2009) and Grammars, Grammarians and Grammar-Writing in Eighteenth-century England (2008). With Anne-Marie Brousseau, she co-organized the 2009 conference on 'Prescriptivisme & Patriotisme: Language norms and identities from nationalism to globalization/Normes linguistiques et identitaires du nationalisme à la mondialisation'.

John D. Phillips is Senior Lecturer in Linguistics at Yamaguchi University (Japan). His research interests include computational and descriptive linguistics, and the Celtic languages, particularly Welsh. Recent publications include studies of change in the grammar of Welsh, and a linguistic description of Manx as it was spoken by its last native speakers.

Massimo Sturiale is Researcher of English Language at the University of Catania (Italy). His published and current research focuses on English historical linguistics, Elizabethan translations from Italian, 18th-century English lexicography (mainly pronouncing dictionaries) and Received Pronunciation. In 2006, he organized the Colloquium 'Perspectives on Prescriptivism' (20–22 April) and, along with Joan C. Beal and Carmela Nocera, co-edited its selected proceedings, Perspectives on Prescriptivism (2008).

Lionel Wee is Professor and Head of the Department of English Language & Literature at the National University of Singapore. His research interests include language policy, pragmatics and sociolinguistics. His publications have appeared in Applied Linguistics, Journal of Sociolinguistics, and Language in Society. His books include Language Without Rights (2011) and English in Singapore: Modernity and Management (co-edited with Lisa Lim and Anne Pakir, 2010).

Lise Winer is Professor in the Department of Integrated Studies in Education at McGill University (Canada); her interests include second language education, sociolinguistics, lexicography and literature. As editor and annotator, she helps restore 'lost' cultural works: these include the novels Warner Arundell (1838) and Rupert Gray (1907); and recordings from the 1930s, The Music of the Spiritual Baptists of Trinidad and West Indian Rhythm: Trinidad Calypsos. Her books include Badjohns, Bhaaji and Banknote Blue: Essays on the Social History of Language in Trinidad & Tobago (2007) and the Dictionary of the English/Creole of Trinidad & Tobago (2009).

1 Introduction: Multidisciplinary and Multilingual Perspectives on 'Patriotic' Prescriptivism

Carol Percy and
Mary Catherine Davidson

Research in the area of language prescriptivism is often discussed in a monolingual context and 'has generally focused on prescriptions aimed ... at native speakers' (McLelland, this volume). The Languages of Nation: Attitudes and Norms offers a rich overview of the breadth of approaches currently engaged by established scholars internationally for considering the mechanisms by which language norms more generally emerge, especially in contexts of contact and cross-cultural awareness. Our introduction summarizes the collection's key themes, documenting the historical and geographical persistence of prescriptivisms while revealing their contextual specificity. John Edwards' Foreword further surveys approaches to identity and language norms. By showing that the collective enforcement of norms was as much a key feature of language and belonging in the past as the national maintenance of 'correct' language usage remains today, he (like other authors in this collection) contests scholarly assumptions about nationalism as an exclusively modern phenomenon.

This collection, while contributing to debates over the origins of nationalism and the nature of group identity, introduces readers to approaches from a range of disciplines, periods and languages on the question of what constitute attitudes and norms in many frameworks of collective identity. International in scope and illustratively wide ranging in approach, contributions from scholars both specialist and interdisciplinary explore the roles of